HENRY HUDSON TRAIL REPAIRS WELL UNDERWAY, DECEMBER RE-OPENING ANTICIPATED

The clean-up and repair work needed to re-open the 1.5-mile section of Henry Hudson Trail between Popamora Point and the Municipal Marina in Atlantic Highlands by December is well underway. This section of trail, closed since Superstorm Sandy, will be characterized by “primitive” conditions.

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS, NJ—As Thanksgiving approaches, area walkers, runners and bicyclists may be thankful to learn that the clean-up and repairs needed to re-open the 1.5-mile section of Henry Hudson Trail between Popamora Point in Highlands and the Municipal Marina in Atlantic Highlands are nearing completion. This portion of trail has been closed since Superstorm Sandy. Repairs were delayed due to permitting, design and construction issues.

Staff and volunteers from the Monmouth County Park System—with assistance from Atlantic Highlands Department of Public Works—have been working to remove tree limbs, debris, and remnants from trail structures destroyed by the storm. When work is complete, trail conditions will be “primitive.” Park System staff expect to reopen the trail by mid to late December.
